

BUILDING LEADERSHIP FOR COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

A Training Curriculum to Support Free to Grow Program Implementation

by: Lori Levine, Michael Sparks, and Paul Speer

FREE TO GROW

Head Start Partnerships to Promote Substance-free Communities

Free to Grow is a national program supported by The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation with direction and technical assistance provided by the Joseph L. Mailman School of Public Health of Columbia University

Building Leadership for Community Development

by: Lori Levine, Michael Sparks, and Paul Speer

Lori Levine serves as the Deputy Director of the National Technical Assistance Center of Free to Grow: Head Start Partnerships to Promote Substance-free Communities. She is responsible for devising and implementing a technical assistance system to support a national network of Free to Grow program sites. She has extensive experience in program development, program management and training, working in preventive health programs in a variety of environments, including community based prevention programs, school-based comprehensive health initiatives, adolescent health programs and pediatric primary care programs.

Michael Sparks is a Project Director at the Vallejo Fighting Back Partnership in Vallejo, California. He has acted as a consultant to the Free to Grow program, assisting sites in implementation of community-based prevention strategies. Mr. Sparks has expertise in the fields of alcohol policy, community organizing, using local control to manage problematic alcohol and drug environments, neighborhood revitalization and leadership development.

Paul Speer serves as Research Director at the Center for Social and Community Development and an Assistant Professor at Rutgers University. Dr. Speer leads a department of 18 researchers working on a range of community-based initiatives, including evaluations of community organizing, child welfare, HIV/AIDS, community policing and early childhood education initiatives. He has also served as a consultant to the Free to Grow program.

ISBN 1-930951-00-0

© 2000 Free to Grow

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Introduction

- 1 Introductory Workshop
 - 2 Principles of Community Action
 - 3 Learning About Ourselves and Our Communities
 - 4 Communication and Leadership Skills
 - 5 Effective Group Meetings
 - 6 Group Facilitation
 - 7 Visioning Community Change
 - 8 Community Mapping
 - 9 Defining Issues for Action
 - 10 Moving Issues to Action
-

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Building Leadership for Community Development was truly a collaborative project. It was developed as a result of an identified need—and a willingness among members of the Audubon Area Community Services Free to Grow site to work closely with the Free to Grow National Program Office to craft a leadership development training that would serve their program’s community action goals. Audubon’s perseverance provided a testing ground for successive drafts of the document—and the staff’s on-going feedback helped us craft workshops that incorporated the lessons they learned on the ground. We would particularly like to thank the following members of the Audubon Area Community Services Head Start team: Aubrey Nehring, Suzanne Hays, Tami Canter-Powell and Mary Lawrence, who worked tirelessly with us throughout the development process.

We would also like to thank those individuals who took the time to review the document for the National Program Office—Tamara Cadet, Sharon O’Hara and Gary Sandusky. As individuals “outside” of the Free to Grow family, each provided a distinctive perspective on the training activities, and helped us to strengthen the curriculum’s relevance to the broader community-building field.